“Neuroimmune Interactions in Development: Implications for Neurodevelopment Disorders”

I will talk about the impact of combined prenatal environmental stressors on maternal immune activation in mice (which is increasingly implicated in disorders such as autism), and its impact on later-life neural and behavioral outcomes in offspring.

Monday, April 20, 2020
12:00 PM
Room 301 Biomedical Research Center (BMRC)